Senator Lucius Q. C. Lamar,

Who Will Probably Be in President Cleveland's Cabinet.

It is generally expected that representation of the South in the Cabinet of the next President of the Union, will include Lucius Q. C. Lamar, now a United States Senator from Mis-issippi. He is eminent for his learning and broad statesmanship. His friends were surprised, not a set-backed, when he pronounced a splendid eulogium on Charles Sumner.

Senator Lamar is a native of Georgia. He was born in Putnam county, September 17, 1825. After receiving a collegiate education he read law and was admitted to the bar.

In 1849 he became a resident of Mississippi, as an associate profesor of mathematics in the University of that State. While holding this position he also acted as an associate editor of the Southern Review.

After a few months of this double employment he returned to Georgia and opened an office at Covington for the practice of his profession. While there he was elected to the State Legislature.

He once more made his home in Mississippi in the year 1854, and has continued to be a citizen of that State ever since. After having served as a Representative in the Thirty-fifth Congress he was elected to the Thirty-sixth, from which he resigned when his State seceded from the Union.

His next step was to become a member of the Secession Convention of Mississippi.

From the halls of debate he entered the arena of war, commissioned as a Lieutenant-Colonel of Infantry. He was promoted to be Colonel, and led his regiment until 1863, when he accepted a diplomatic appointment to Russia, made by the Confederate Government. At the end of the war he recommenced teaching.

The subjects of his lectures at the State University of Mississippi were political economy and social science, for a time; he afterwards taught the principles of law to the students of that institution.

His election as a Representative to Forty-third Congress necessitated the resignation of his professorship. He was re-elected to the Forty-fourth.

His membership in the United States Senate dates from March 1, 1877.

The term of six years which he is now filling, will not expire until March 3, 1889.

Senator Lamar is a fine-looking man, and both a hard student and ready-witted man of affairs. He possesses great influence in his State, and is one of the most considerable figures in the Senate at Washington.

His recreations include indulgence among the sweets of political literature, to which he largely due the ease and

THE CRESCENT CITY.

"Falcon" Agrees to Guide You to the World's Ex.

[Special Correspondence of the Times.]

Though I am not alone writing about the incidents and episodes of New Orleans, yet the number of people who are constantly asking me for plans and specifications of what they ought to do and what they ought to see when they go to the Exposition is so great that I am compelled in self-defense to write something of a statistical letter to which I may refer them when they ask me.

In the first place, then if you are going to New Orleans and have friends there, write them at what time and on what day you will arrive, so they may meet you at the depot. Get them to secure rooms for you so on your arrival you may go at once to the place they have provided. Let them get rooms either with or without board, as they think best. For my part I should prefer rooms without board, as there is no lack of facilities for getting something to eat. If there are ladies in the party, you had better, for obvious reasons, go to a private boarding-house where meals and lodging both are had. Excellent board may be had for man and wife occupying one room at $5 per day for both, including lodging, meals, attendance and fire. Board may be had cheaper than this of very good quality, but this is cheap enough for the best.

If you have friends there to whom you can apply you had best go to a hotel immediately upon your arrival. The St. Charles and the Rovate are the two principal hotels, the latter being on the European plan.
It is also newly refitted and furnished, and is altogether one of the most pleasant houses I ever saw. The backman will want a dollar a head for taking you there, but make him content himself with fifty cents, as that is the lawful price. If you get to the city in the daytime, and have no trunk, go on a street-car or walk and hire a boy to carry your gripcase.
Anybody will very gladly tell you the way to go.

After you get to your hotel make a break for the Bureau of Information on Gravier street, near the St. Charles Hotel. When you have your room ticket the railroad agent will give you a small pamphlet, with the number of this place and various other items of information in it. If he doesn't, or you should lose the one you have, you can get one on the train just before reaching New Orleans.
At this Bureau of Information you will be courteously received and your wishes attended to. They keep a register of all the people who rent rooms or take boarders, with location and price. You can there consult a map of the city and select such places as you think likely to suit you.
We preferred to get as far as possible into the French Quarter, because we wished to saunter about and study the foreign life and admire the strange old-fashioned houses down there.
But most people will want to be near the center, so get your rooms as near Canal street as you can. Along Dryades street is perhaps the most desirable, and in the neighborhood of Mechanic Institute some excellent rooms may be found.

COLORED LANDLADIES.

Don't be surprised if you find your landlady to be a colored woman.
Many of the best houses you can secure will be kept by quadroons.
They will not hurt you. They are perfectly respectable, and honest—will exhibit the best of breeding, and not obtrude themselves upon you in any way. I am told by residents that the attendance and service is better with them than elsewhere, and that it is not considered at all out of place for white people, both gentlemen and ladies, to have rooms with colored landladies. I say for myself that their rooms are kept neat and clean, and occupied by white people, who, so far as I could ascertain or observe, were perfectly respectable.

When you find rooms to suit you engage them at once and pay for them. Then call a carriage, have your baggage brought there and you are at home. Don't be afraid to ask questions, and don't hesitate to bargain with them. I say for myself that the Bureau of Information they will answer all the questions you ask, and will not allow any sharks to get hold of you. If any one not known to the officials comes in there and needs a stranger they fire him out at once. They aim to protect you in every way possible. If you want to make a gorgeous ass of yourself and won't be protected, that is a free country, just like it is anywhere else.

After you are settled in your rooms, unless you board in the house, the next question is about your catling.
If you like such things, you can probably get your landlady to include "coffee" with your rooms without extra charge. That means that you will be served with a cup of strong coffee and a French roll before you get out of bed in the morning. It is said to be a great luxury, but we didn't try it because we didn't have that kind of a landlady. I should think that it would be an excellent idea to have it. It really constitutes a Creole breakfast, and all the natives, I believe, follow the custom.
As a rule take coffee whenever you can get it. You will probably soon conclude that you never drank coffee before, though it is much like Foreign toffee. Its flavor is divine and a small quantity of it at a time will do you good. If you really love coffee put one lump of sugar to the cup and no milk—you will not get a chance to put any cream in it. Everwhere there, except, perhaps, in the hotels, the coffee is good—they don't know how to make any other kind.

If, however, you want breakfast you can have no trouble to get it. If you want a morning cocktail, or what is much preferable, a bottle of Hathorn water, go to the Turf Exchange in the basement of the St. Charles and get it. The liquor there is as good as it is anywhere else, and you can become a lunch fiend and get your breakfast. They set a lunch there every morning about half past 10 o'clock, which is in itself an excellent meal, and I saw hundreds of people away from the morning. It is
natives, I believe, follow the custom.

If that doesn't suit you, go to Victor's. It is on Bourbon street, about a square and a half from Canal, if I remember right. Close by is

"the Old Absinthe House," where the absinthe is said to be the best in the world. If you take a drink of it you will be able to eat an alligator. I have tasted absinthe very rarely in my life, but never anything like this. I suppose in large quantities it might intoxicate, though I felt no effects of that sort from it. Yet I think a bottle of Hathern water the best appetizer and the most perfect thing to cool out hot peppers and take the lime-kitt taste out of your mouth.

AN EMBARASSMENT OF RICHES.

Victor doesn't pay me anything for advertising him, and I don't begrudge it to him free gratis. Of course there are numberless other places all good, and the prices are reasonable enough.
Leon's, on St. Charles street, near the hotel, up stairs, is thought well of by many strangers, and is very convenient of access. We tried various places, and concluded, all things considered, that Victor's was the best place for breakfast. It was just Frenchy enough, and not too Frenchy. We also agreed that An-toine's, kept by the "Widow Alcatorre," proprietress, on St. Louis street, between Royal and Bourbon, was the best place to dine. It is much French-er than any others which we patronized, and seemed to be best liked by the Gauls. I suppose they only provide for that sort of custom, and therefore, while they give it, they tent to breakfast, they concentrate all their powers upon the dinner.

When Tried Always Preferred.

When they once become acquainted with it, ladies invariably prefer Parker's Hair Balsam to any similar preparation. It makes the hair soft and glossy, arrests its falling off, promotes new growth, restores the original color, and has no rival as a dressing. Not a dye, not oily, highly perfumed. Only 50c. at druggists.

Origin of the Names in the Week.

In the museum at Berlin, in the hall devoted to northern antiquities, they have the representations from Idols from which the names of the days of our week are derived.

From the Idol of Sun comes Sunday; this idol is represented with his face like the sun, holding a burning wheel, with both hands on his breast, signifying his course around the world.

The idol of Moon, from which comes Monday, is habited in a short coat, like a man, but holding a moon in his hands.

Tuesday, from which comes Tuesday, is one of the most ancient and popular gods of the Germans, and represented in his garments of skins, according to their peculiar manner of clothing, the third day of the week was devoted to this worship.

Wednesday, from which comes Wednesday, was a valiant prince among the Saxons. His image was prayed to for victory.

Thor, from which comes Thursday, is seated in a bed, with twelve stars over his head, holding a scepter in his hand.

Fry, from whence we have Friday, is represented with a drawn sword in his right hand and a bow in his left.

Sater, from which is Saturday, has the appearance of perfect wretchedness; he is thin, long, long haired, with a long beard. He carries a water-pail in his right hand, wherein is fruit and flowers.

Eight years ago J. Milton Turner, colored, Minister from the Republic of Liberia to the United States, telegraphed from Washington to the Astor House, New York, for a suite of rooms. They were reserved for him, but when, on his arrival, the proprietors discovered that he was a black man, he was refused accommodations. He brought suit under the civil service law, and the other day the case was dismissed under the decision of the United States Supreme Court, declaring the law unconstitutional.
This removes all redress from colored men who are refused admission to the hotels.

Horses in Battle.

(Exchange.)
War-horses, when met in battle, tremble in every muscle and groan deeply, while their eyes show deep astonishment. During the battle of Waterloo some of the horses, as they lay upon the ground, having recovered from the first agony of their wounds, fell to eating the grass about them, thus surrounding themselves with a circle of bare ground, the limited extent of which showed their weakness. Others were observed quietly grazing on the field between the two hostile lines, their riders having been shot off their backs, and the balls flying over their heads and the tumult behind, before and around them caused no interruption to the usual instinct of their nature. It is also observed that when a charge of cavalry went past near to any of the stray horses already mentioned they would set off, form themselves in the rear of their mounted companions, and, though without riders, gallop tremendously along with the rest, not stopping or flinching when the fatal shock with the enemy took place.

At the battle of Kirk, in 1745, Maj.
Macdonald, having unhorsed an English officer, took possession of his horse, which was very beautiful, and immediately mounted it. When the English cavalry fled the horse ran away with its cap, notwithstanding all his efforts to restrain him; nor did it stop until it was at the head of the regiment, of which apparently its master was commander. The melancholy, at the same time ludicrous, figure which Macdonald presented when he saw himself the victim of his ambition to possess a fine horse, which ultimately cost him his life upon the scaffold, may be easily conceived.

The Model Wife.

Scripture and history and poetry vie with one another in sounding the praises of a model wife. The man who is blessed with a companion worthy the name of a model wife can snap his finger in the faces of all the old bachelors that ever breathed and give them points each day in every exalted pleasure that makes life worth living. There is no danger of his applying for a divorce.
Unfortunately for married men of this generation, the model wives are almost dead. The struggle for existence was too much for them. The ceaseless, silent self-sacrifice needed to build up a model domestic character could only be met and borne as long as there was a living appreciation of the personal laws of duty that underlie all sorts of ideal existence. The men who appreciated model wives and were in return willing to be model husbands were so few that good wives—that is, the model wives—grew discouraged and and took to their graves or some more congenial occupation.

The few model wives that are left are cherished by their husbands beyond even their cigars or their horses. The model wife of the workingman, clerk or business man has some appreciation of the ten thousand little labors, petty cares and anxieties that her husband has to go through each day in his workshop or office. She considers that such worrying cares are a part of the duties by which her husband makes a living for himself, for her and for the children, if there are any.
And when the husband comes home from his work tired, perhaps cross, and hungry and out of sorts, she is always ready to meet him with some quiet and gentle good cheer. Her own person is attractive and restful to him. She always has some pleasant scheme in mind to make his home hours delightful to him, and so make herself indispensable and a constant joy. A model wife does not see how many poor and silly or exacting things she can say to her tired husband. If she has anything to ask she waits until he is rested and fed. She invites pleasant people to her home, not to show how many rich things she has, but to make her husband's home hours pass cheerfully. She knows that if she is half a woman no other can displace her husband's affections. She is always more attractive in her manners to her husband than to other men.
She is the genius of the household.
But unfortunately, most of them are dead.

A Wonderful Mule.

The Most "Judgment" and "Imitations" Creature That Ever Lived.

Mr. Luke Prior, of Alabama, is noted for his great natural sense and his original English. "I see," said he to a group of fellow-members, "that Senator Hampton has been telling about a cow that can talk, and Senator Vest tells about a dog that can black boots and imitate a Methodist exhorter. Now I have a mule on my farm near Opelika which is certainly a judgment creature. He is an onery-looking cuss, but, as I said, very judgmental. I must say he is the most imitations animal I ever seen. He is even more imitations than the monkey. That mule's favorite amusement is to go in swimming with the boys, and—would you believe it?—he can swim on his back and dive head foremost like a fish.
Yes, sir; he has dived at least thirty feet and come up with his head all muddy. This mule is so imitations that he can counterfeit almost any wind instrument. There's a ferryman near my place who has shot at the river several times. The ferryman has a horn on the opposite side of the river for travelers to blow as a signal when they want to come over. The mule got onto this racket, and whenever he gets a chance he goes down to the ferry and brays just like a horn a blowin'." On tuggy days the ferry-man can't see across the river, and he don't know whether it's the mule or a traveler. He told me the other day that last year he had pulled his boat over six times to answer that caused long-earred mule, as he put it.
On my farm I have a large bell, with ropes attached, to ring up the hands at day-break. An old colored man used to attend to this duty, but one night about two years ago he suddenly died. Next morning everybody was astonished to hear the bell ringing at the usual hour. I went out to see who was ringing it, and, gentleman, I hope I never get back to Alabama if it wasn't that mule! Yes, sir; and that mule has been ringing that bell over since at daybreak every morning. Not only this, but he canters down between the negro cabins, just as the old man used to do, to see that every body goes out on time.
The old man had a way of kicking on the door of a hand who did not move out brisk, and one morning the mule followed his example. In a certain cabin there were a very lazy colored family that never stirred until every body else was at work.
Just at daybreak the mule backed up to the front door and gave a kick with both feet that sent the whole family through the back window.
The mule didn't know it, however, and he kept on kicking. The next day it took four carpenters to put that cabin together again. Gentlemen, as I remarked before, that mule's the most judgmental and imitations

Victor Hugo celebrated his 83rd birthday Feb. 23, and is still hale and hearty.

The Kentucky Congressional delegation held a meeting in Washington Saturday to discuss the claims of Kentucky applicants for office.

The Ohio Legislature has adopted a resolution to submit to the people an amendment to the Constitution changing State elections from October to November.

The Kansas peach crop, it is reported, will be an entire failure on account of the recent severe weather. The apples and strawberries are reported all right.

Ex-Governor Herish Magoffin died at Harrodsburg Saturday. He was Governor of Kentucky in 1839. He was a lawyer, statesman, politician and philanthropist, and a man of prominence and wealth.

An ingenious exchange has discovered that the following sentence of thirty-three letters contains every letter of the alphabet:

"J. Gray, pack with my box five dozen quills."

Mrs. Yselt Dudley, who is still in jail in New York, is kept busy replying to letters from cranks who want to marry her. The last offer rejected was from Herbert F. Beardon, who described himself as a good-looking young widower.

The Globe Democrat has offered $100 to any one who will make a correct guess as to who will form the Cabinet of President Cleveland.

This is a good opportunity for the President himself to make a hundred dollars, by sending in his "guess" to the Globe-Democrat.

President Cleveland has written a letter to a committee of Democratic Congressmen giving his views on the question of silver coin. He says in a suspension of the coinage is necessary for the welfare of commerce, and that a free circulation of the coin now on hand, both gold and silver, will avert impending disaster to the financial interests of the country.

Wm. Neal, the Ashland murderer, was not executed last Friday at midnight Thursday acting Governor Hindman telegraphed a respite of four weeks. Unless there is further executive interference Neal will be hanged March 27, unless sooner hanged by a mob. He had to be secretly moved from the Grayson jail to Mt. Sterling in the night to prevent the infuriated people of Carter County from lynching him when the news of reprieve was received. An immense crowd was on hand to see him swung off.

The dead-lock in the election of a Senator in the Illinois Legislature was broken by the hand of Providence last Friday. Hon. Robt. E. Logan representative from Whitesides county, a Republican, dropped dead of heart-disease in the State house. The Democrats now have 102 and the Republicans 101 members on joint ballot. 103 votes are necessary to constitute a quorum and unless a Republican can be induced to act with the Democrats, the Republicans can defeat the election of a Senator by refusing to vote. The first ballot since the tie was broken will be taken to-day. Gov. Oglesby has ordered a special election in Whitesides county for March 21.

An exchange gives the following list of edibles that have been ordered for the supper in Washington to-morrow night at the inaugural ball. It will be observed that the articles are shorn of their French names and given in plain English:

Six large salmon.
Six thousand rolls.
One hundred hams.
Six large striped bass.
Eight thousand clams.
Sixteen sets of roast beef.
Fifty dozen head of lettuce.
Two hundred roast turkeys.
Five hundred boiled turkeys.
Two barrels of chicken salad.
Fifty dozen bunches of celery.
One hundred and fifty tongues.
One thousand pounds of cake.
One thousand pounds of lobster.
Eight thousand pickled oysters.
One thousand quarts of ice cream.
Five hundred quarts of water.
One hundred and fifty bottles turkey.
One hundred and fifty loaves of bread.
One hundred quarts of common soup.

Gen. Grant is again reported to be in a very shattered state of health. He is suffering with neuralgia and his tongue has become so inflamed that he speaks and swallows with difficulty. His son, Col. Fred Grant, has made the following statement:

"My father is a very sick man. There is no use in longer denying the fact. We have made every effort to keep the true facts from the public, because we knew as soon as it should become known that he was dangerously ill there would be hundreds of letters coming in with every mail and this would only excite him and make his case less hopeful. My father has had little rest for the past few nights. He was up and about his room for a little while yesterday and we hope to get him up again to-day, but he is suffering from pain in the ear and head. For any facts concerning the nature of his disease I refer you to his physicians."

Four physicians held a consultation in regard to his case Saturday, and all agreed that Gen. Grant could not live longer than three months. He is now confined to his bed and the end may be close at hand.

THE SOUDAN.

COL. BULLER JOINS WOLSELEY.

The Slaughter at Khartoum.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A letter received at Korti from a man who was taken prisoner when Khartoum fell into the hands of the Arabs, and who is now kept in captivity in the Mahdi's camp at Omdurman, confirms the statement that El Mahdi's troops massacred the soldiers of the garrison and many peaceful citizens. She also states that the number of persons slaughtered was fully 2,000.

KORTI, Feb. 27.—Gen. Buller's whole force is now within one day's march of Gakdul, and has reached this point without casualties. The sick and wounded are doing well. Buller expects to reach Korti early next week.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—It is stated that Gen. Lord Wolseley has determined to retain possession of the Gakdul-Korti route, in the hope of thwarting any advance by the Mahdi via Abu Klea.

The late Gen. Gordon's record with regard to the events that transpired from the date of his arrival at Khartoum up to the time of his death, are expected to reach London next week. Their publication is anxiously awaited, and many believe that they will show the gallant General fully realized his danger and his utter hopelessness of holding out for any definite period.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Sir Stafford Northcote's mission for capture of the Government's policy in the Sudan was defeated in the House of Commons to-night by a majority of fourteen for the Government, the vote standing—yeas, 288; nays, 302.

President Arthur retires from his high office with the respect of the people of all parties. He has made a conservative, just and good President and has developed more of the qualities of statesmanship than any of his predecessors during the last twenty years. One of the evidences of his fairness and high sense of honor was his persistent refusal to fill vacancies with his personal friends upon the eve of his retirement from office. He has left a large number of important vacancies to be filled by President Cleveland with men who will be in accord with the administration. But the greatest service ex-President Arthur has ever rendered the country was in refusing to help elect Jas. G. Blaine to the Presidency. Democrats should always think well of him for this, if for nothing else. Upon retiring from office Mr. Arthur will become a member of a New York law firm.

The National Theatre in Washington was burned Friday morning before daylight. The loss was $200,000, partially insured.

The case of John Felard against Muhlenberg county, in which plaintiff asked a mandamus against the county judge to compel him to levy the railroad tax, was tried in the Circuit Court last week and decided in favor of the county. Judge Grace gave it as his opinion that the tax could only be levied by the judge and board of magistrates and rendered judgment accordingly. This is a victory for the county, although the same question had been tried and decided in the same way heretofore in the United States Court, this is the first instance in which the question has ever been tried in the State courts. The plaintiff gave notice that he would take the case to the Court of Appeals, but there is but little doubt but what they will decide it the same way.—Echo.

Last Tuesday Mrs. Moses Caton, of Union county, was buried near Smith's Mill. The action of her husband in refusing to let neighbors view the body caused foul play to be suspected and the body was exhumed by the coroner and an examination showed that the woman had been hanged, poisoned and fearfully beaten over the head. Esp. Lilly went with a posse to arrest Caton and his son and daughter and meeting with armed resistance fired upon them. Moses Caton was wounded in the ankle, and his son John and his daughter Annie both badly and perhaps fatally shot through the body. The trio then surrendered and are in the custody of the law.

We are pleased to observe that nearly every paper in the State joins us in our demand for pure, able, sober, discreet and intelligent men in the Legislature. The Owensboro Messenger proclaims that it is "done with the professional politicians and chronic office seekers." That's the correct doctrine, and we hope the masses of the people will speedily become inoculated with it. In nine cases out of ten, the man who thrusts himself forward for office is the least deserving. Men of real merit are neither brazen-faced nor obtrusive.—Breckinridge News.

The faculty of the State College at Lexington expelled J. O. Holaday, a student from Mississippi, for refusing to attend night school, and J. M. Black and W. R. Black for drunkenness. When the faculty refused to grant their application for re-instatement twelve other students took their part and applied for honorable discharges, which were granted. It is likely a number of others will leave in the next few days. There is great excitement among the students.

Jno. Gill, who was shot by A. M. Bowling at Mt. Sterling has since died of his wound.

OBITUARY.

Died at his residence in this county, at 7 o'clock P. M., Feb. 26th, Dr. T. F. Clardy, in the 47th year of his age.

The subject of this notice, Dr. Thomas Fleming Clardy was born in the southern part of Christian Co. Ky., June 29, 1843. Except two years in Ballard county and the four years of the Civil War, he has spent his entire life in this county. After receiving a fair education in the country schools, he was sent to Georgetown, Ky., where he graduated in 1858. Studied medicine with his brother, Dr. J. D. Clardy, and received the degree of M. D. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1860. Entered the Confederate service at the beginning of the Civil war, as surgeon of the 7th Ky. Infantry. Was afterwards promoted to Surgeon on Gen. A. Buford's staff, and served to the close of the war. In 1865 he married Miss Sammie, of Missouri and settled in the southern part of this county, where he has since lived. In addition to the arduous duties of an extensive practice in his profession, he gave particular attention to his farm, and left his family one of the most beautiful and charming homes in Southern Kentucky to attest his energy and taste.

He embraced Christianity in early life, and joined the Salem Baptist Church, of which he has been a consistent, faithful, working member, and for many years an ardent deacon. Conscientious in the discharge of every duty, he was true to every trust, faithful in the fulfillment of every obligation of citizen, husband, father, physician and friend. And the esteem and affection in which he was held by those who knew and loved him best, was attested by the unprecedented gathering of the community in which he lived to pay the last sad rite to his memory.

With energy and will far beyond his physical strength, he often ministered to others when he far more needed help himself. Liberal, generous, impulsive, always ready to assist in any noble human skill could do so, he will be missed, especially among the poor to whom he ministered with unfeigned heart. He lived a Christian life and died with an undimmed faith. His last utterance being that "all is well." On Saturday the 28th inst., after a beautiful and appropriate funeral service by Rev. J. T. Barrow, his wasted body was laid away in the family burying ground to rest in peace until summoned at the great resurrection to join his beautiful spirit gone before.

He left a most devoted wife two lovely children, many relatives and an unnumbered host of friends to mourn his loss. J. D. C. News-Record, Ky., March 2, 1885. New Era and Clarksville papers please copy.

The farmers are wearing long faces on the crop prospect this year. The wheat crop has been very seriously damaged by the severe winter, and the most discouraging reports of its condition are heard on every hand. But little if any plant land has been burned and every indication points to a backward spring and poor crop year.

Theo. Schalk and Clark Sharp were arrested Saturday, charged with selling a mule upon which a mortgage was held. It is charged that Sharp hired one Ogg to take two mules to Nashville, upon one of which A. H. Anderson held a mortgage of $150. The ownership of the other was also in dispute. It is claimed that the mules were sold to Sharp by Schalk and the former sent them to Tennessee about three weeks ago. The men are brickmasons who live in this city. Sharp gave bond for $300 and Schalk is still in jail. The case will be tried at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Messrs. Henry & Payne represent the accused.

Last Friday being the birthday of the poet, Henry W. Longfellow, the day was observed by the pupils of the Hopkinsville Public Schools, by appropriate exercises. A large number of visitors were present who expressed themselves greatly pleased by the character of the exercises and the manner in which the pupils acquitted themselves. Too much cannot be said in praise of such a custom, for by means of it the children become familiar with our best authors and their works. It creates, develops and sustains a taste for literature. It gives the child a fund of pure and elevating thoughts which produces a lasting effect upon its moral nature.

The drawings and lettering done by the pupils on the various blackboards were remarkable for decided artistic merit.

Mr. L. B. Ritter has settled with his family in Leesburg, Fla., and we hear is well pleased with his new home. As he is in a community in which he and family are entire strangers, we desire to commend him to his neighbors as a clever gentleman, worthy of their confidence and esteem. His health has been such for years that he was in a great measure unfit for business in this climate and he was compelled to seek a milder one. By kinship and marriage he is connected with some of the best families in the State. His father, B. C. Ritter, was Congressman from this district. His uncle was Judge in the Sixth judicial district and other members of the family have held positions of trust and honor in the State. We wish for him prosperity and happiness in his new home.

ALMOST—BUT LOST.

A Hitch Occurs in an Elopement and the Bridegroom is changed at the Last Moment.

Persons in the city who heard the long and loud whistle of the engine of the incoming accommodation train Friday night knew that there was a bridal party aboard. The engineer always honors eloping couples with a serenade of this kind. In this instance the matrimonial venture was not only romantic in the extreme but highly sensational, as the following recital will show: Miss Emma Henderson, daughter of Mr. E. H. Henderson, of this city, was the heroine of the affair. For two years she has had two ardent and devoted admirers—Mr. W. H. Martin, a handsome young druggist of Crofton, and Mr. O. S. Stevens, a prominent young collector of this city. Both young gentlemen have been engaged to Miss Henderson. Last Thursday the young lady wrote to Martin to come to Hopkinsville and she would elope with him the next day. Martin came on the wings of the wind and the couple left on the 6:45 train Friday morning. The young lady's mother was friendly to Martin, her father was indifferent, while her brother John was on Stevens' side. The eloping couple reached Springfield before 9 o'clock and Mr. Martin went at once to the clerk's office and secured his license, at an expense of $3.50. He insisted upon an immediate marriage, but the young lady, who had shed tears on the way asked to have the ceremony postponed an hour or two. She sent for the landlord and to him she confided the secret that was making her hesitate. She told him she loved two young men and after examining her heart was convinced that she loved the one at home better. The landlord volunteered his services and she gave him the following telegram to send:

MR. O. S. STEVENS,
 Hopkinsville, Ky:
 Come to Springfield on first train. I am waiting for you.
 EMMA L. HENDERSON.

Stevens, accompanied by the young lady's brother, took the 12:25 train and arrived at Springfield shortly after 3 o'clock. Miss Henderson had in the meantime again left Martin off, giving as a reason that her brother would come at 3 o'clock, and she would wait until he arrived.

The brother and Stevens arrived and repaired to the hotel, where the whole party discussed the situation. Miss Henderson had an interview privately with each of the lovers and her brother also talked to them. The case was decided in Stevens' favor and the sorrowful information was imparted to Martin as mildly as possible. He declared that he was devotedly attached to the young lady but was willing to abide by her decision and accepted the verdict in a manly way. He returned to the clerk's office and that official refunded his money. Mr. Martin then attended the wedding and although he had not spoken to Mr. Stevens for two years he "buried the hatchet" and congratulated him, and sat with his bride with a kiss. The whole party then left on the returning train for this city. Mr. Martin sat in the same double seat with the bride and groom and accepted the verdict in a very graceful manner. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens repaired to the residence of the bride's parents and all hands concluded to accept the decision of the young lady and make the best of it. Mr. Martin has a marriage license as good as new which he will dispose of at a bargain. He regrets the turn affairs took, but is disposed to view the matter philosophically and neither fly into a passion nor give way to poignant grief.

Hopkinsville and Cadiz B. B.

The Legislature of Kentucky, at its last session by act approved April 8, 1881, incorporated the Hopkinsville & Cadiz Railroad Company, and appointed Commissioners to effect an organization of the company. The Commissioners are: E. P. Campbell, Jno. C. Latham, Samuel G. Buckner, R. T. Petree, W. G. Wheeler, S. E. Trice, H. G. Abernathy, Thomas C. Dabney, T. H. Givner, Geo. W. Lindsay, Robert Wilford, Fenton Sims and J. W. Crenshaw. A meeting of these Commissioners will be held on Thursday next, at 7 o'clock, p. m., at the office of Judge J. J. Landies in this place to take the preliminary steps to effect the organization. We hope there will be a full meeting of the Commissioners, and that this important enterprise will be set on foot at once. Hopkinsville and this county will vie with Cadiz and Trigg county to secure a connection which will be of such great advantage to both counties and towns.

The Best Hogshead in the Market.

If you want good hogsheads, I am prepared to furnish you with them made by the celebrated hogshead maker, J. W. Tucker, who has no equal in this business. My prices are very reasonable, and I can make it to your interest to call on me. All I ask is a trial to convince you that my hogsheads are the best in the market. Give me a call, Virginia street, Mitchell & Winfree's old stand. HENRY T. BARD.

Certificate of Pomroy's Chill Cure.

CHURCH HILL, Ky., Aug. 9, 1884. For a year or more, I had been having chills; and could find nothing to cure them. I tried quinine and many other things, but the chills continued to get worse until I despaired of ever curing them. I finally tried Pomroy's chill cure and from the first dose of it until this time I have not had a chill. I am now in fine health and entirely cured of the chills. I say positively that Pomroy's chill cure is a splendid medicine and to my certain knowledge it will cure the worst case of chills. M. M. HAMMERY. Dec-9-ly.

Dissolution Notice.

Neither mental nor physical labor can be accomplished satisfactorily unless the system is in order. When you feel tired, languid, wearied without exertion, the mind slow to act, and requiring great mental effort, you can rest assured that your Liver is not acting properly, and that nature requires assistance to help throw off impurities. There is no remedy that will accomplish this so quickly and yet effectually as Prickly Ash Bitters. A trial will satisfy you of its merits.

Blumensteil's Repair Shop is the place to have your buggies painted and trimmed in the best style. Old Poindexter Carriage Shop, over Andrew Hall's marble works.
